Rand Named As Stassen's Aide in MSA

William McNear Rand, retired president of the Monsanto Chemical Co., yesterday was named deputy director of the Mutual Security Agency, which handles foreign aid.

MSA Chief Harold E. Stassen announced Rand's appointment at the White House after accompanying him in a call on President Eisenhower.

Stassen said Rand will devote special attention to developing overseas sources for raw materials, adding that this activity will provide materials needed for American defense and at the same time supply dollar earnings to foreign countries.

Rand is from Lincoln, Mass.

In other job developments:

William Skinner Kilborne of New York City was named a special assistant to Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks. Kilborne, 50, has been vice president in charge of sales and a trustee of William Skinner and Sons, New York textile manufacturers. He is a native of Stockbridge, Mass.

President Eisenhower appointed Deputy Defense Secretary Roger M. Kyes to the Special Committee on International Information Activities. He will be Defense representative on the committee.

The Senate Armed Services Committee approved nomination of Allan Dulles to be director of the Central Intelligence Agency. Dulles is the brother of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. His nomination now goes before the full Senate. The CIA is this country's main espionage arm.

The Senate Interior Committee approved unanimously the nomination of Samuel Wilder King to be Governor of Hawaii. The committee acted after Delegate Joseph R. Farrington of Hawaii requested that King be confirmed promptly because the Hawaiian Legislature is in session. The nomination now goes to the Senate for action. King, a resident of Honolulu, is a former delegate to Congress from Hawaii.
